

FIXED INCOME

OUTLOOK

OCTOBER 2024

QUICK TAKE

- Expect lower interest rates in the second half of FY25.
- Investors should add duration with every rise in yields, as yield upside limited.
- Mix of 10-year maturity and 1-2-year maturity assets are best strategies to invest in the current macro environment.
- Selective Credits continue to remain attractive from a risk reward perspective given the improving macro fundamentals.

This September was a month to remember. The US Federal Reserve (Fed) finally kicked off the interest rate cycle with a larger 50 bps cut; the first one after March 2020. This rate cut coupled with inline inflation numbers in the US led to a rally in US bond yields, which were lower by 10-15 bps over the month, ending 13 points lower at 3.77%. Mirroring the actions of the US, Indian government bond yields rallied by 8-10 bps due to a fall in global bond yields and increased probabilities of the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) changing its policy stance in October policy. Foreign Portfolio Investors (FPI) flows was positive in September and stood at US$3.9 bn over the month. Year to date, cumulative debt inflows amounted to US$17.3bn.

Key Market Events

Global interest rates heading lower : As mentioned, the Fed set the interest rate cycle in motion with a 50 bps cut. Interestingly, Fed was the last one to lower rates and the Bank of UK, Europe, Canada, Switzerland preceded it. In the quarter ended September, around 28 rates cuts have happened globally. The Fed dot plot further gives guidance of additional 50 cuts till December 2024. Another major event for the month has been news that China will issue $284 billion of sovereign debt to help revive economy half of which will be in form of free handouts to stimulate consumption. This is in addition to surprise rate cuts and cuts in reserve requirements announced by the central bank. In its monetary policy meeting between 7-9 October, the RBI is expected to change its stance on the monetary policy.

Inflationary pressures ease : Headline inflation data was little changed at 3.6% due to base effects. The September numbers could be higher around 5% due to an uptick in vegetable prices. Nonetheless, as highlighted last month, inflation in the second quarter would be lower than RBI expectations.

Banking liquidity in surplus : Banking liquidity moved to the deficit zone due to advance tax outflows in the second quarter. However, durable liquidity continues to remain hugely surplus at approx. Rs 4.5 trillion, most of which is with the government in the form of high balances. We expect liquidity to remain deficit once the festive season starts and we might see some volatility in money market yields due to pick up in credit growth and higher deposit supply.

Market view

The Fed has kicked off the interest rate cut cycle with a larger than expected cut. This is only the third time in recent history that the Fed has started rate cuts with a 50 bps cut. The previous two times, the economy was in recession. Markets view this move as a strategic pivot to sustain economic momentum while inflation moderates. The Fed's actions act as a cushion to the economy against potential downside risks, such as global economic uncertainties or slowing domestic growth, without necessarily expecting a sharp downturn.

10 YEAR G-SEC YIELD
6.75%

Separately, though the measures announced by China are of significant magnitude (~25% of annual China GDP), it's too early to conclude their execution and impact on global macros, inflation, and commodities.

Due to higher than expected rate cut by the Fed, a good monsoon, lower headline inflation in second quarter and change in MPC members, we believe that from October onwards, the RBI can change its monetary policy stance. We continue to expect 50 bps of rate cuts till March 2025

We believe that the peak of surplus banking liquidity is behind us, and as the festive season approaches, banking liquidity is likely to remain in deficit. Additionally, we may experience some volatility in money market yields due to an increase in credit growth and a higher supply of deposits. Consequently, our portfolios continue to favor government bonds, and we have begun adding 1 to 2-year AAA bonds from a carry perspective, given the inversion in the corporate bond curve, where 1-year bonds are trading at 7.75% and 5-year bonds at 7.25%. Furthermore, with India's growth remaining robust, we do not anticipate the RBI to aggressively cut rates and expect a total of 50 basis points in rate cuts by March 2025.

Risks to view

We see two risks to our long duration view.

- Recent measures taken by the Chinese government as they can break the disinflation cycle and can lead to high commodity prices, which in turn can impact INR and bond yields.
- Fed delivering lower than anticipated rate cuts in 2025 would lead to significant shallow bond market rally in India.

Positioning & Strategy

We have been maintaining a higher duration across all our funds and guiding the rally in bonds since March 2024. Though we have already witnessed a more than 40 bps of rally in yields since the beginning of the year, positive demand-supply dynamics for government bonds and expected rate cuts will continue to keep bond markets happy, and we can expect another 15-25 bps of rally in the next 3-6 months. Accordingly, from a strategy perspective, we have maintained an overweight duration stance within the respective scheme mandates with a higher allocation to Government bonds

What should investors do?

- Investors should continue to hold duration across their portfolios.
- Incremental gains in long bonds would be with policy stance change or rate cuts.
- In line with our core macro view, we continue to advise short- to medium-term funds with tactical allocation of gilt funds to our clients.
